

I have prescribed Terraline so frequently for Croupy Children that several mothers within my circuit do not feel safe without a bottle always in the house. It relieves that frightful cough at once.

TERRALINE FOR Cough, Wasting Diseases AND Croup in Children.

These are relieved and quickly cured by Terraline—the product of Petroleum that is superceded cod liver oil with its disgusting features. Terraline being tasteless, children learn to like it. It makes them fat, rosy and strong. Terraline is not a patent medicine, and is in daily use in hospitals and by physicians, who openly praise its grand properties. Write for "Physicians Testimony."

Dr. Tenney is a physician of the highest reputation. He was graduated at Harvard University Medical School—is a member of the Nat. Assn. of Ry. Surgeons—Consulting Physician of Bethany and St. Margaret's Hospitals, and member of several medical societies.

Durang's Rheumatic Remedy.

While in Washington City some time since, and at the time a great sufferer from rheumatism, on the recommendation of Richard C. Spofford, and others, I used Durang's Rheumatic Remedy. I purchased three bottles, and I am happy to say the second bottle cured me. I have not written this as a testimonial, but will gladly furnish you one if you desire it. I refer you to Colonel Pierce of your city, who will vouch for the above.

Yours truly,
Major JOHN W. MAHON.

THE STOCK MARKET QUIET

Fair Amount of Commission Buying Increased Short Interest.

Weekly Bank Statement Shows No Important Changes—Loans Have Increased $3,500,000.

New York, Dec. 4.—The market for securities this week has reflected growing confidence. The dealings in stocks have been more than twice as large as last week, averaging over 100,000 shares a day. The increase in the transactions in bonds has been even more pronounced than in stocks. The demand for bonds and for investment securities generally has been unusually active. There is a plethora of unemployed money, not only in the banks and financial institutions at the principal commercial centers, but throughout the country as well.

The same condition exists abroad, but as yet European investors have not begun to absorb American railway securities with their old time avidity. This is partly due to their misunderstanding of business conditions and prospects in the United States. Instead of viewing with apprehension the sale of American securities in this market by English and other European operators, local dealers, particularly in investment issues, have been the administration appears to be doing everything in its power to avert political interference with the business of the country. It is believed in Wall street that the ministry will make no aggressive moves, but will simply transact routine business. These considerations have unquestionably influenced investors and also substantial interests in the stock market for some little time past and are to a extent responsible for the improvement in prices on the Stock Exchange this week.

Today's stock market was comparatively quiet and irregular. There appeared to be a disposition to await the publication of the President's message; still, there was a fair amount of commission buying, while the selling indicated the short interest. Sugar refining and Chicago Great Western were the only stocks in which the transactions exceeded 10,000 shares. Both were exceptionally strong.

The weekly bank statement shows no important changes. The loans have increased three and a half millions, in consequence of a scattering demand for accommodation. Theatrical stocks that declined materially lower yesterday were Jersey Central and Manhattan.

The value of the clearing house system was well illustrated today when the Chase National Bank settled $5,000,000 of exchanges at the clearing house by a payment of but $1,000 in cash.

The bulls unsold themselves at the frightful dullness yesterday with the suggestion that the market was waiting for the President's message. The fact of the increasing desire of legislators to deal with the pending large questions in a moderate and conciliatory spirit, and a venture

During two or three days of the past week there was slight broadening and strengthening of the market, and the bulls were more sure that the great push forward had begun, and that there would be no more dullness. It was a spontaneous effort, as was shown very conclusively by yesterday's apathy.

The fact of the matter is probably that the President's message has already had its effect largely. The two good days this week may be attributed safely to the counting what are supposed to be the peaceful statements. There are several careful observers of the market who would not be surprised if there were to be a further movement upward in the next few days. The market for the last two days, the market, what there was of it, drifted along under the uncertain influence of trading sentiment. The day's business left prices about where they were at the opening.

What will come after the first speculative move on the opening of Congress is a matter for large debate. The idea is very strong that there will be nothing hollow in the message, and Wall street is hugging the belief that the President will let the Congress have its way. The President's message, without comment, for the present, as the President will suggest. This belief will probably lead to a decision. The Senate will talk Cuba. As for other influences, the reports as to the condition of the country are only moderately favorable, and hence, if we may put it that way, most unfavorable. The cotton goods trade is witnessing the lowest prices on record.

The earnings of Canada Pacific for the fourth week of November increased $100,000. Wheeling and Lake Erie's earnings for the same period increased $19,574.

There is very little on the surface to indicate anything with regard to Sugar's immediate future, but I have received that the market seems well founded in the belief that there is to be a further movement upward in the next few days. There is a good evidence that the insiders are acquiring the floating stock. There may be a small decline tomorrow after the receipt of the President's message if the general market goes that way.

Down, Jones & Co. say of Manhattan: "Ever since the Craker party has been making its headquarters at Lakewood, points have been coming regarding important developments in Manhattan. Lakewood is the home, also, of George Gould, president of the Manhattan Company. The Craker party is understood to have been very successful in its deal in Metropolitan Traction, and it has been comparatively easy to get a following in Manhattan. The story is that Manhattan is to be given important privileges for extension of its lines."

Western Union will perhaps have a small rise between now and the declaration of the dividend on Wednesday.

The grangers' earnings are so good that according to all bull ideas there should be large advances in them all this winter.
